As a result, he and the other Orcs come across the human race. The warlock is soon discovered and captured by the Horde, and the portal to the Orcs is used to send all the orcs to live in the human city of Draenor. The Horde is not a peaceful force, but the vicious Orc leaders want to control them. During the War of the Ancients, the Alliance and Horde clashed, with the Alliance led by a human leader Garrosh

Hellscream winning. The Horde is led by an Orc, Orgrim Doomhammer. He puts forward a plan to acquire the portal in order to take over the rest of Azeroth. Doomhammer's decision is validated by the bloody battle between Horde and Alliance forces, and the plan is a success. Revelation soon comes to the Horde capital of Orgrimmar. The Alliance leader, Lady Anduin Wrynn, along with the Alliance armies arrive to confront the Horde. The Horde is defeated and Gul'dan and the other Horde leaders are captured, but Doomhammer and the other leaders escape. The Draenor War storyline ended with the release of the Battle for Mount Hyjal. The Horde battled the Alliance to find the nexus on Mount Hyjal that controlled Azeroth's other portals. The Horde is still being controlled by the current leader of the Horde, Doomhammer, who used the Nexus to summon many other Orcs to aid him in war. The Alliance defeated the Horde at the end of the Battle for Mount Hyjal. Development During the development of World of Warcraft, the Warcraft III expansion, Wrath of the Lich King, was released. The expansion was a huge success, and development had already begun for a new expansion. Mike Morhaime, the co-founder and CEO of Blizzard Entertainment, said, "We knew that what we had to do to make it happen was to blow the doors off Wrath of the Lich King and look at everything from that perspective." Reveal and release In May 2010, Blizzard revealed a new expansion, called World of Warcraft: Cataclysm. Blizzard vice president of game design Rob Pardo said,

"We're hoping to build a game that's going to last for a decade, and then some."

Pardo announced Cataclysm on the BlizzCon on October 3, 2010. Warcraft III character and druid Tauren Chieftain Thunderstruck is featured as a playable class in Cataclysm. An Xbox 360
