The Portuguese forward netted just three goals in the first three months of the season, after a knee injury, but he is now back to full fitness and has helped the team to a seventh-placed finish, above Manchester United and Manchester City. His 22 goals have helped him finish ahead of Arsenal's Pierre-Emerick Aubameyang, who scored 20 times, with Chelsea striker Daniel Sturridge a distant third on 17 goals. Manchester City's Sergio Aguero finished second in the voting, and is the second player to do so after 2015/16 winner Lionel Messi. The Argentine forward had a hand in 43 goals for Pep Guardiola's side, and scored a goal every 7.72 minutes on average in the league. Aguero is the first non-European to win the award since Germany's Miroslav Kl ba244e880a
