Q: Cant get input value from inside function

Hi I am trying to create a script to calculate the value of an input field. So far I have this:

function calculate() {
  var price = document.getElementById("price").value;
  var cost = price * 0.75;
  var total = cost * 0.5;
  var price = total / 2.5;
  document.getElementById("total").value = price;

HTML: So far I'm getting the value of the field as undefined. Any ideas on what I'm doing wrong?

A: This can be done much easier than this using jQuery

(Assuming you are going to use jquery):
jQuery.fn.calculate = function() { return
$(this).val() * 0.75; }; or

jQuery.fn.calculate = function() { return
$(this).val() * 0.75; };

$('#price').on('change',function() { var
price = $(this).calculate(); var cost = price
* 0.75; var total = cost * 0.5; var price =
total / 2.5; $('#total').val(price); }); Q:

Three.js Importing PNG directly from a.obj file I'm currently working with

Three.js and I'm trying to understand how to correctly add a PNG image in the scene.

I'm trying to add the PNG image directly from the obj file to be used by an

AnimatedImage, like this: var loader = new THREE.ObjectLoader(); loader.addEventListener('load', function (event) { var img = event.content; scene.add(new THREE.Mesh
