The floor care industry has many types of devices and systems for cleaning hard surfaces and carpets such as a lint filter. Lint filters are often constructed of a porous fabric filter material. The fabric filter material is generally a woven material that has been formed into a flat sheet shape. A lint filter material can also be formed into other shapes, such as in the form of a tube or a cylinder. Lint filters are often placed in machines to attach to a vacuum source. Lint filters are cleaned by vacuum from a vacuum source, resulting in a spent lint filter having a debris and particulate matter accumulated on the debris collection surface of the lint filter. Certain floor care devices also include a powered rotatable brush. The rotatable brush is often powered by an electric motor, a stepper motor, or a diode powered motor. Such brushes are often used to scrub surfaces that are not adequately cleaned with just vacuum cleaning. For example, vacuum cleaning is often ineffective in removing debris from difficult to access areas such as along the seams of furniture, in cracks and crevices, and the perimeter of walls and ceilings. Such bristles used on a brush often also have a relatively short life. When the brush wears out, the cleaning device using the brush has to be taken to a repair location, often requiring a shop visit. It would be advantageous to have a floor cleaning device that effectively cleans hard surfaces and carpets, while still allowing a user to readily and quickly repair the cleaning device. Further, it would be advantageous to have a floor cleaning device that can be easily broken down into at least three parts, which provides a better assembly and disassembly to allow for repair.// //

Critical reception "Don't Leave" received positive reviews from music critics. Digital Spy gave the song four stars out of five, stating: "If it's any consolation, the album opener 'Don't Leave' won't have you scurrying for cover, as it's full of Lea's trademark seductively simple pop rock, complete with a sweetly slow tempo and mellow strings. The chorus is simple too - 'Whatever makes you feel alone...' - but when Lea belts it out, it's full of glorious passion". Louisa Thomas of The Atlantic said the song has a "trendy dance tempo and vocals that carry a quiet but assertive staccato", and that "Don't Leave" could be "a template for pop power ballads of the future". PopCrunch called the song a "catchy and interesting new direction, with a super strong melody, a sing-y chorus, and a cool, slow-building vibe that works well". Lyz Rose of BBC Radio 2 included the song on her Pick of the Week playlist. Live performances The first performance of the song was on March 17, 2011, at the Cafe Carlyle in New York City where she appeared as herself on a TV episode of the series Glee.
