7z is an archiver with a new approach to compression. The most important benefit of this compression format is its extremely fast file archiving. 7z archives are extremely small and cannot be opened by any archiver. This is very convenient. There is no need to install 7z in order to archive large files. You can simply unpack 7z archives with any archiver. Compression settings are excellent and the whole file system becomes much smaller. You can use 7z as a standalone archiver or as a command line archiver with a graphical user

7zip® Wrapper is a compression tool based on the 7-Zip engine, which lets users create archives quickly and effortlessly, as well as skip any selected file extensions. Hassle-free installation and user-friendly GUI The setup procedure is fast and uneventful. The interface is based on a regular window with a neatly organized structure, providing direct access to all available options. The 7zip program is automatically identified by the app. Batch processing is possible, meaning that you can point out entire directories with files to compress, in order to reduce overall task time. All you have to do is specify the output file name and location. Easily configure settings In addition, 7zip Wrapper lets you exclude any file extensions from the new archive, as well as set the low and high compression level. Command lines are supported, so advanced users can enhance the app's functionality. Evaluation and conclusion 7zip Wrapper is undemanding when it comes to CPU and RAM, so it does not affect the overall performance of the PC. We have not come across any issues throughout our testing, since it did not hang, crash or pop up error messages. All in all, 7zip Wrapper offers a simple solution to compressing files while skipping any desired formats, and it can be handled by anyone. My Stuff About Newsgroups Newsgroups is the generic name given to a number of message-based peer-to-peer communication services. The term originally described a network news organization composed of peers using the same mailer program and a news distribution list. Over time, the concept of "newsgroups" has morphed into the general Internet term used to describe any service that facilitates the creation of (and consumption of) news items or other kinds of articles, similar to a "news" newspaper. Newsgroup technologies are categorized based on the message format used, as well as the protocol used to read and write messages in that format. Some of the most popular newsgroups are FidoNet, Usenet, and Gopher. Newsgroup technologies have a variety of implementations that vary based on their underlying message format, and are not all inherently interoperable. As Britain's biggest retailers prepare for Black Friday, a new survey has revealed that

Christmas is fast approaching and more than a third of retailers are working flat out to be ready for the festive shopping period. Tesco, Asda and Marks and Spencer are the three retailers that are said to be working the hardest to get ready for the big day. According to the survey conducted by Xmas Chase, an annual competition that sees businesses enter to win £25,000, 33 per cent of retailers said they were working flat out this year. Almost half of the retail managers surveyed said that the peak shopping season came as a surprise. However, another survey conducted by YouGov last week found that more than two-thirds of shoppers are planning to
