Free Software: GIMP Like Photoshop, another popular image-editing program is called the GNU Image Manipulation Program, or GIMP. GIMP is free and open source (it's available for several operating systems, including Linux, Mac OS X, and Windows), and the end result is a program that is arguably better at some tasks than Photoshop and is equally capable of doing others. GIMP has an intelligent and easy to understand interface (although it's very basic compared to Photoshop) and is completely customizable, which makes it like the Swiss Army knife of image manipulators. If you want to learn how to use GIMP to edit images, take a look at some of the available tutorials on the Internet (try www.gimp.org/tutorials/ for a good starting place). Because of the fact that GIMP is open source, it has additional advantages in that you can easily find other people's tutorials, and you can also share your own discoveries. All you need to do is download the GIMP program, and you can get started using it

Q: How to change the default directory of Apache in XAMPP? If I start XAMPP for Windows, there is already a default directory of Apache/PHP: Does anyone know where I can change this directory? I want to put a project there. I'm using Windows 7, XAMPP 1.8, PHP 5.4.37. A: If you open the XAMPP control panel (Start > Programs > XAMPP > Control Panel), you can change the document root to any directory on your system. A: This is done in the PHP config script. If you want to move the whole XAMPP folder, you'd be better off having a look at what the default configuration is, and copy it to a new location. Enron Energy Services has completed an update to the CES Retail Web page, (Retail), to add a new page, "Energy Services Providers". As the industry continues to evolve at a rapid pace, Energy Services Providers will bring customers the most current information available to make informed choices about energy service providers. This page will help customers identify which Energy Service Providers are a good fit for their business or household. It will also help customers complete and submit applications with established Energy Service Providers. The benefits to both the customer and Energy Service Providers are substantial because customers will receive more timely and accurate responses to their inquiries and make a more informed decision when choosing a service provider. To add "Energy Services Providers" to your CES Retail account, go to the following links: (Log in as a CES Retail customer and follow the prompts.) If you are already a Retail customer, we will then enable you to add Energy Service Providers.
