Advertisements Howdy folks, not sure if you guys remember, I'm a huge internet junkie and run a large internet marketing magazine called

Browserreviewer magazine which I run myself from home so I have loads of free time to write and experiment with new software. The reason I'm in the position I am in now is because of the software "Rundll Errors Fix Wizard". Back then I came across it when searching for programs to fix many of the viruses and other problems that are (still) rampant on the internet. It was basically the first program to tackle the problem, and pretty much the only one to do so at the time. I tested it and was impressed, so I posted a review on my forum "Brighthouse". I then bought it, and was even more impressed with how it worked, so I posted an improved review of the "Rundll Errors Fix Wizard". It was at this point I got serious about finding a Windows version of the program. Sadly, I had a load of people tell me that it wasn't possible. I also had to go and live with the fact that people who hadn't played around with it wouldn't be able to use it. Well, a lot of people who had previously told me that it wasn't possible are now using it, so i now think the program is finally available on the internet. In fact it's a program I've recommended to a lot of people who have asked me about it. After a while I started to think about distributing a free version

Rundll Errors Fix Wizard is a software application that scans your hard drive for any DLL errors and attempts to fix them, as the name implies. where the tool automatically performs a scanning session. Once it is done, you can view potential problems, whether they are related to invalid data entries or the Windows Registry. On the downside, there are no configuration settings available. For instance, you cannot select the areas of the system to be scanned or fixed by the program, as well as schedule a task or make the app automatically run at system startup. It does not even let you view details concerning Registry entry issues, or offer to create backup (in case the operating system starts experiencing errors afterward).

Rundll Errors Fix Wizard runs on a very low amount of CPU and system memory, so it does not interfere with the runtime of active processes. It has a good response time and quickly finishes a scanning job, without causing the operating system to freeze, crash or pop up error dialogs.
