Seamless setup and clean interface The installation process you are required to go through does not take longer than a few seconds and does not bring any kind of unpleasant surprises, while the interface you are greeted by encloses a minimal and clean design. It encompasses a few buttons, a preview pane and a folder structure. It is suitable to all types of users, including those with little or no previous experience with computers. Web browsers and extensions supported This program detects all video files cached by your web browser, be they in a FLV, MPEG, AVI or MOV format, and displays them in the main window using a folder structure. It is important to keep in mind that it supports the most popular browsers, including Internet Explorer, Mozilla Firefox, Google Chrome and Opera. Save items and refresh the list This list can be refreshed, a fullscreen mode can be activated, and it is possible to preview a clip, as well as play, pause or stop it and adjust the volume level, with the help of the built-in playback controls. It is possible to select the output folder from the settings panel, create a subdirectory for each file type and do not copy resources with the same content. No other notable options are incorporated. Conclusion and performance CPU and memory usage is minimal and thus, the system's performance is not going to be affected in any way. The interface is user-friendly, the response time is good and a video tutorial is provided. Nonetheless, you should know that it does not always behave properly, and it has not been updated in quite a while. Video Cache Preview Trups Vale Trups Vale () is a vale at the northern end of Coats Peninsula, on the west side of the island of South Georgia. It is a conspicuous rounded hill, about high, standing south of the end of the Trups Point, and forms the southern part of the glacier-free ice-free summit plateau of the island. It was photographed by ANARE (Australian National Antarctic Research Expedition) aircraft in December 1956, and was named by the UK Antarctic Place-Names Committee for John Trups (1792–1874), who, according to a letter in The Spectator, was
