I am getting this error: I tried setting the path to Android sdk using %USERPROFILE%\AppData\Local\Android\sdk but it is still not working and I am getting the error below: The installation location is incorrect or you don't have the necessary permissions. I tried following steps to fix the above, but it did not work: Checking system environment variables and path : I have also tried setting the path to %programfiles%\Android\android-sdk but it is still not working. Checking system environment variables with path that I created in the above step I have also tried setting the path to my android sdk on the android sdk path page A: Try following path to set up the android SDK. Then restart your visual studio and you should able to start the Android-Studio. C:\Program

Files (x86)\Android\android-sdk Post-treatment of Oklahoma's shale wastewater in a multi-barrier landfill: leachate treatment and solid retention. During the Texas Shale Boom, the production of shale gas from the Bakken Formation near Oklahoma City led to the development of a new form of gas production termed hydraulic fracturing or 'fracking'. During fracking, large quantities of wastewater are produced that are difficult to manage. The wastewater is composed of unconventional solvents, salts, and toxic chemicals.
