OSX x64] Waves â€œ Complete 2018.11.04 (STANDALONE, VST, VST3, RTAS, AAX) [Win x86 x64] â†’.Q: C++ macro for conditional cast? Is there a C++ macro that, given a type and an expression that either evaluates to that type or to another one, will return a (C-style) static cast expression? A: With C++11 macros from variadic templates you could create a small metaprogramming facility that generates that kind of expression without the programmer explicitly providing any additional metaprogramming. For example, here is a very simple macro which generates an expression of type "T1 x T2" if T1 or T2 evaluates to a reference to a type convertible to T1 or T2, and otherwise does nothing. #define cdi_cast(t1, t2) t1 x t2 If you want to use the macro like this: void fun(int& x) { int& y = static_cast(3); double& z = cdi_cast(static_cast(1), 2.0); fun((float)cdi_cast(static_cast(2.0), (char*)4.0)); // and so on } A: Boost Boost has a number of utilities like this, built around compile time magic. Boost is used a lot within the STL and is the basis of a number of other libraries used in C++. The present invention relates to a process for producing a dried sludge containing inorganic matter such as ore and ash, in which the sludge is dried under a non-oxidative atmosphere so that the ore and ash precipitate therefrom and then is collected, and the sludge is recovered from the
