This guide will teach you how to edit images with Photoshop Elements. We will cover the following topics: How to import, edit and save images in Photoshop Elements How to use Photoshop Elements' built-in tools and features How to work with layers How to crop images How to remove backgrounds from images How to remove unwanted objects from images How to correct white balance How to adjust the exposure How to create custom brushes Let's now get started with editing an image in Photoshop Elements. Convert an image to a different format before editing Edit photos in its original format as it is the best way to see how the changes you make will be represented in the image. Convert your image to JPG, JPEG or PNG If you want to be able to open the images you edit in your web browser without having to open them in an image viewer, you can first convert them to the formats that the web supports. Click the File > Save As command from the menu Type a name for the file, select a location for it, and click Save. If you want to save the image to the desktop or your documents folder, instead of in the Elements library, select the Save in Drive option. Click OK. How to convert an image to JPG or JPEG Right click the image and click Save as, or Select Save as type JPG and then click Save. How to convert an image to PNG Right click the image and click Save as, or select Save as type PNG and then click Save. Note: Make sure to have a sufficient storage space in your computer so you can make a backup copy of the image, if you want to. Select the files you want to convert If you have many images to convert, you can select the files at once by holding Shift and then clicking on the files. Otherwise, you can first select the photos in the image editor, and then select them from the main view using the popup menu. Click on the photo you want to select, then click on the eye icon to make sure the photo is selected. If you want to select a group of photos from the image editor, select them first and then click Ctrl + A (⌘ + A) to select all of them. Double click the image and its properties will be displayed

Q: JQuery Ajax request returns empty body, but receives proper parameters? I'm trying to make an Ajax call via JQuery and get back whatever the server returns, but all I'm getting back is an empty body. No error message either, just the empty string as the response. I'm not trying to authenticate or anything, the call is just for grabbing some content. The call is being made via a client side button which calls the following JQuery AJAX call: `function pageLoad(){ $.ajax({ url: "/includes/functions/getArticles.php", data: {"uid":"guest","type":"article"}, type: "GET", dataType: "text", success: function(data) { alert(data); }, error: function(xhr,errMsg,err) { alert(xhr.status +' '+ errMsg); } }); }` The page doesn't even submit the form since this is a client side call. I just want to get back all the content that gets saved with the form. All I'm getting back is "", with status 200 and everything. No exception thrown. Update The issue turned out to be with my PHP code, but I still don't understand why my Ajax call gave me empty return data. The form: First Name
