It is distinguished from the other crystal cells because it has a very thin cuticular outer layer and has numerous vesicles in the cytoplasm. High magnification electronmicrographs of ommatidia from the eyegut of the locust gut show that these vesicles form a complex network of short intraocular pathways that run from the subretinal space through the pigment epithelium, into the outer plexiform layer. In addition to this, the vesicles are also present throughout the cytoplasm of the pigment cells. Since the pigment cells produce the pigment granules, mal-cecilia intermedia must therefore have a role in separating the two types of granule. This, together with the highly mobile nature of these vesicles, suggests that they form part of a 'recycling system' for the pigment granules. The Mal-cecilia Intermedia phenotype is one in which the salivary gland consists of a single cell, the Mal-cecilia Intermedia cell, which is capable of producing crystal cells as well as pigment cells. This raises interesting questions about the relationship between these two types of cell and the significance of the co-existence of these two crystal cells in the locust coxodea. Q: Calculate difference in codeigniter how to calculate difference between two dates with one row in database in codeigniter. A: I think the best way is to get the dates into an array first, and do the math using it. In your model or controller, something like this: `$dates = $this->db->get('table')->result(); $new_dates = array(); foreach($dates as $date) { $new_dates[] = $date->date; }` As for the math, you can use `date_diff_us()` in the same loop. The order of the columns does matter, but note that I think you want UNIX timestamps. And `date_diff_us()` would work well for this.
