He has his sights set on joining the competition to play in Major League Baseball next season, the Free Press has learned. Howard's agent, Paul Kinzer, said Friday that Howard is "100 percent" going to play in 2019 — and with the Yankees and the Dodgers — and didn't rule out the possibility of Howard playing in the World Series for the Yankees. The window to sign Howard is closed, in part because of his long-standing knee issues. He is undergoing an operation on the knee and has been told by doctors it's unlikely that the Yankees could do anything for him this season. Howard was a free agent in October but signed a one-year, $2 million deal to stay with the Phillies. "He came back to work this week. He's doing fine," Phillies manager Gabe Kapler said Friday. "He took some medicine for his knee and there are some tests that need to be taken to figure out what happened to him." Kapler said he has spoken to Howard about his knee. "The likelihood of how it's going to go is hard to say at this point," Kapler said. "He is trying to come back as fast as he can to get back with the team." Howard was the NL MVP in 2008 with the Phillies but had knee problems in 2018 that led to surgery in November.Q: Websphere MQ 6.1 SSL authentication I have tested SSL authentication mode and I am unable to connect to WebSphere MQ 6.1. Beth Ann New, who is leading an effort to revitalize Crescent City, and her boss, Mayor Arthur Ravenell, stand in front of the Midtown area where some businesses are thriving. (John King / The Times) SCOTT SIMON With the winter tourist season over and most of the construction work finally completed, what's next for Crescent City? "This is our first real test," Mayor Arthur Ravenell said, smiling behind a microphone during a news conference Tuesday. "We're ready to move on. We've got to have more people on the street, for one thing." Ravenell is the mayor of the smallest city in the country and is presiding over a city that just recently transformed itself into a tourist destination. A clutch of positive stories - from infrastructure improvements, to strengthening the downtown retail district, to a thriving high-end hotel market and some new, funky boutiques - has Ravenell and his staff basking in a glow of accomplishment. 1cdb36666d
