In order to make sure the players interact with all dimensions in the pitch, the new realistic dribble and passing techniques, the new ball physics, the new PS4 Pro support and the new lighting system, the developer has worked for a long time to ensure that the new levels of realism are also kept within reasonable time and cost restrictions. As the title suggests, with its reworked player models, its goal-line technology and its more complete playbook, FIFA 22's overall goal is to ensure you experience the most realistic football gameplay in the world. FIFA's This year's biggest change FIFA is one of the best-known sports games in the world, and as such, it has become commonplace to upgrade the title on an annual basis. The developer will be doing just that this year, with FIFA 22, thanks to the implementation of new player models, the FIFA Ultimate Team card system and the new game engine. The new career mode is, without a doubt, the star attraction of the game, as players will now be able to attempt to unlock 21 trophies and earn more than 10,000 XP points. Players will also be able to earn experience points and earn gold medals for passing, shooting, goalkeeping, dribbling, and performing the most successful tackles. The developers of FIFA have taken a significant step forward with the introduction of a "Rotation"-like system for certain players, and this will be another major feature of the game. On the pitch, players will also be now able to interact with each other, especially when it comes to the "Apropos Talk" feature, which will now introduce new concepts and commentary. Another major new feature, FIFA's "Strategic Control." FIFA's most significant new feature is indeed its "Strategic Control" system, which as the name suggests, is a new way of controlling the tactics of a game. To do this, players will now be able to use the right stick to drag their characters to certain locations on the pitch and let them carry out "Spot Goals", "Off the Ball" actions, "Press Me" moves and off-the-ball tracking moves. In FIFA 22, players will also be able to track multiple competitors and use the right stick to drag the player who they wish to watch onto the penalty spot, and then it will be up to them to decide whether they want to shoot

FIFA is the world's biggest sports franchise, with more than 200 million registered users. When the official game launches at the end of September, players will experience a new way to play, designed to bring the most authentic version of the game to fans around the world. FIFA's career mode offers a new experience that takes place in real-world leagues and utilizes a complete player generation system, all implemented for the very first time in a FIFA game. Key Game Features An immersive new game engine that gives players the most realistic and authentic football experience ever, bringing the game closer than ever to reality. The complete career mode, with new gameplay innovations, including player generation, where players develop their attributes and the way they play, and the length of a season, now being 115 matches long for the first time in a FIFA game. New Time-Tested Live Events, including the UEFA Champions League, UEFA Europa League and the 2018 FIFA World Cup Russia™. Players will also be able to compete for their country in up to nine real-world leagues. New Player Intelligence System, which offers realistic attributes such as speed and acceleration, which can be improved and unlocked by scoring goals and winning games. Innovative 3v3 online and play-together modes, which will include Legends, tailored to welcome younger generations to the game. Cristiano Ronaldo and other top players in the game, featuring new facial capture and animations, and the ability to personalize the training of your players. A soccer-specific practice area, which allows players to practice exactly as they would in real life, complete with grass, real stadiums and the ability to create their own players. The most precise ball physics and player animations in the history of FIFA to deliver the most authentic and realistic experience possible. In FIFA 22, when you play with the ball, the ball responds to the way you play. Even when you shoot or pass, it moves in the opposite direction as the way you play. For the first time in a FIFA game, shooting and passing will feel more realistic than ever. The most accurate physics and ball control in the history of the series, with players dominating the ball from low to high. Players will be able to control the ball with extreme precision, with a host of new tricks and passes possible, including the ability to pass with the head in addition to the chest.
