Head of the FIFA series Randy Pitchford shared some additional details on the new and improved game at the FIFA 22 panel at EA Play 2018. Sharing some bits of information regarding the new gameplay mechanics, Pitchford shared that the motion capture technology used in the game will enable the ball to respond to players in the same way it would respond on the field. He added that the ball will move naturally if a player is able to control it. Pitchford also said that the game has 400 player models that react realistically to the ball and ball movement. Pitchford also shared that the new ball physics will ensure that the ball can be controlled very close to the touchline. He added that the goalkeepers will be able to dive around the ball naturally, considering the ball is behaving very realistically. Pitchford said that the new engine will be developed on the same Unity platform used for FIFA 19 and FIFA 20. The game engine was also tested extensively on game consoles and online platforms, Pitchford added. He also shared that the game will be running at an “at least” 60 frames per second on all platforms. The game’s ESRB rating will also reflect its quality in motion. Pitchford added that the game will feature a revamped card system that will allow players to unlock new items and skills while playing. He also added that the new card system will provide players with a new way to customize their gameplay. Pitchford said that FIFA 22 will be the most accessible game ever created for all the newest and existing modes. He added that the game will feature a “completely new FIFA Ultimate Team experience” as well. The rest of the FIFA 22 panel included some new gameplay details, most of which were revealed during the FIFA 20 panel at EA Play 2018. The panelists shared that the new “Mobility System” in the game will allow users to choose between two unique control schemes – Possession and Traction. The Possession mode will be similar to the gameplay of FIFA 19. However, it will feature a more “aggressive” style of play. Users will be able to directly control the player instead of using the left stick to look around the pitch and make tactical decisions. The Traction mode will be similar to the “Long Ball System” that was added in FIFA 19 as well. However, this mode will allow players to use the ball like a shield. The mobility system will provide the two modes

Fifa 22 Features Key:

- Air football and FIFA Ultimate Team
- Real-life player movements – See the chip-takers, the pacey strikers, and the elusives who duck under challenges.
- Last-man standing – How far do you believe you can take the ball? It’s unlikely any defender can cover ground as fast as you can. With the new sprint double-take.
- Continental Cup™ - Navorro Bowman, Kyle Beckerman, Toni Kroos and Arjen Robben all played major roles during the 2017 final, now compete in the beautiful new 2018 FIFA Club World Cup™ continuity.
- Online leaderboards – Compete with and against the best in the world on a country level. Match yourself up on continental, or global leaderboards at the season, national, or club level.
