“The real-life movements of 22 football players give us a unique insight into what makes a good football player,” said Unai Emery, FIFA executive producer. “Creating a game that lets players compete on the best version of the pitch has become a priority for us, and that includes how they move and play.”

New Player Progression Model When players are born, they begin with a natural ability level that changes over time based on skill and performance level. With FIFA 22, players who play less because of a lack of talent or commitment will learn new skills, improve their fitness and tactical understanding and ultimately improve their gameplay. Training to improve skill and fitness will also occur during the course of a game. Players can train tactical drills to become more skilled and have more training time when they're on-field. This training is automatically recorded in-game. It will also affect players' on-field behavior and results. “The goal is to create more realistic behaviour,” said Lars Ullerup, FIFA development director. “You can change how your player plays.”

FIFA 22 introduces high-performance Optiflow for player animation. The new technology features on-field visual fidelity, improved collision detection and a more realistic behaviour, all of which were tested with the FIFA community. Sophisticated AI Artificial intelligence (AI) in EA SPORTS FIFA 19 introduced a new level of artificial footballing intelligence and agent technology. AI now understands exactly how and when to pressure a defender, when to overlap, when to shoot and how to assist other teammates. With the introduction of new tactics, the AI adapts on the fly with the ever-changing game state. In FIFA 22, the AI will constantly search for and exploit tactical weaknesses, becoming a smarter and more ruthless competitor. The AI will now make smarter and more dangerous tackles, decision making and positioning. And defenders will switch off more aggressively. The AI will use new evasion and acceleration modes to beat opponents. FIFA 21 introduced a competitive setting for FIFA Ultimate Team. Ultimate Team seasons are now automated, with packs being generated and distributed between seasons based on previous team performance. Referees now make more clear decisions for penalties and professional fouls. The Offside Indicator has been completely revised, with new input from video assistant referee (VAR)
